

Meet our ACCESS Drone Flight School Instructors

Nicholas Young

I am the Lead Drone Instructor for ACCESS. I come from a background of professional coaching and believe in a fun learning environment. I have worked on many different projects in my career, from accompanying athletes to international competitions, to completing an AEC in Drone security and working Pilot projects involving drones. Before both my teaching careers I was a Senior national team athlete in my respective sport and have competed on the international circuit. I now am very active in other sports and following my kids recreation activities. I hope you can reach new heights with the ACCESS Drone Flight School.

Nicolas Tondreau-Alin

Instructing has always been part of me. Since 2012, I've been teaching figure skating as a National Level coach. In 2020, after completing my Commercial Pilot License (CPL) and my Flight Instructor Rating, I started teaching the basics of flying in Cessna airplanes. After 2 years and more than 1000 hours of instructing, I went on flying commercial. I am now employed by a large Canadian Carrier flying internationally as an Airline Pilot. In 2023, I joined ACCESS as a drone instructor. I specialize in the online material and individual tutoring in order to pass the written examinations.
